Keynote: Harry S. Truman and Four Months That Changed the World
A. J. Baime, Author

Join award-winning historian and biographer A.J. Baime as he details the firestorm Truman was reluctantly thrust into the day FDR died. The first four months of Truman's administration saw the creation of the United Nations, the fall of Berlin, firebombing of Tokyo, the Nazi surrender and the liberation of concentration camps, mass starvation in Europe, the Potsdam Conference, the bombing of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, the surrender of Japan, the end of World War II and the rise of the Cold War. No other president had ever faced so many critical decisions in such a short period of time. Join us in a conversation about how decisions made by President Truman in response to these events changed our world.

*Named after one of the country's most infamous political bosses, Tom Pendergast, who was integral to Harry Truman's early political success. Pendergast started as a saloon keeper and the founder of a wholesale liquor company. Under Tom, Kansas City ignored Prohibition and emerged as the "Paris of the Plains." Money, jazz, and spirits flowed in the open. When asked how he justified ignoring Prohibition, Pendergast quipped, "The people are thirsty."
