Affordability in the Electricity System Transition
September 27-28, 2023

Wednesday, September 27 from 1:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m. ET

Thursday, September 28 from 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. ET

The electricity system is experiencing unprecedented change. Customers will have a substantial role in participating in, influencing, and paying for this change. Just how much customers will pay remains a concern, especially for those customers who struggle the most to pay energy bills. With the increasing costs of vehicle and building electrification, efforts to integrate renewable energy on the distribution and transmission systems, and other investments to improve the functioning and reliability of the electric grid in the face of a clean energy transition, all while striving to maintain or reach a more equitable and just electricity system, energy affordability has leapt to the top of the priority list of all major electricity policy-makers on the federal, state, and local levels.

Join the National Council on Electricity Policy (NCEP) for its 2023 Annual Meeting, where NCEP will identify tools and explore collaborative approaches to address immediate term and long-term affordability issues.

Planning for Tomorrow's Savings Today: Ensuring Affordability in the Transition to Transportation Electrification

September 26-27, 2023

Tuesday, September 26 from 1:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m. ET (site visit)

Wednesday, September 27 from 8:30 a.m. to 12:00 p.m. ET (workshop)

Transportation electrification has long-term benefits for the environment, the economy, and for customers. Achieving these long-term goals requires planning, coordination, and collaboration across a wide array of stakeholders and decision makers who must balance the long-term benefits and cost savings with near-term investment needs, a changing technological landscape, and high uncertainty.

The workshop will explore how decision makers and stakeholders can work together despite uncertainty to maintain affordability and achieve value for customers as the nation transitions to an electrified transportation future. Note: This workshop includes a pre-event site visit in partnership with AES-Indiana and Electrify America.
