CDC Announces New England Stakeholder Meeting on Childhood Vaccines

Washington, DC - May 31, 2011 - In our continuing efforts to help educate and inform state policymakers on issues surrounding healthcare, Women In Government would like to inform you of an opportunity made available through the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC).

The New Hampshire Immunization Program, in partnership with the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), invites you to participate in a Community Engagement Meeting, Wednesday, June 15, 2011, from 9:00 am to 4:00 pm at the New Hampshire Department of Health and Human Services, Division of Public Health Services, to discuss how, and whether, CDC and the Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices (ACIP) incorporate values and social factors into the decision-making process for childhood immunization.

This Community Engagement Meeting in Concord, NH, is one of four meetings that will be conducted around the country to delve into important public policy questions related to childhood vaccines and to give that input to the Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices (ACIP), the CDC, and the public.

Factors for consideration in policy-making decisions might include severity and rarity of a disease, the costs and cost effectiveness associated with a vaccine for the disease, and the impact on the infant immunization schedule. The meeting participants will be asked to weigh what questions should be considered by CDC and discuss ways that ACIP and CDC can incorporate differing factors and priorities into the decisions regarding a new vaccine.

The New Hampshire Community Engagement meeting will include briefings on the present ACIP process for formulating vaccine use recommendations. Currently ACIP discussion takes place around disease burden, vaccine safety and efficacy, and program feasibility, as well as overall costs, cost effectiveness, and the challenges of protecting children from rare but serious diseases and the high emotional and financial costs.

This meeting, and three others in cities around the country, will bring regional priorities to a panel of national-level stakeholders who will work toward a recommendation to CDC. The meetings will focus on the specific example of meningococcal vaccines for infants and children.
