Welcome, Introductions and Program Overview

Speaker: Mary Fairchild, NCSL, Colorado

8:25-8:45 a.m.

An Opportunity Agenda

This session will highlight the status of America's children, ways to develop pathways for parents to become financially secure and strategies to support children's healthy development and academic success.

Speaker: Lisa Hamilton, Annie E. Casey Foundation, Maryland

8:45-10 a.m.

Opportunity, Responsibility and Security

A number of factors contribute to families not only attaining but maintaining financial security in today's world. Hear about how shared values of opportunity, responsibility and security guided the efforts of liberal and conservative experts to reach consensus on policies to further economic security for families.

Moderator: Rochelle Finzel, NCSL, Colorado

Speakers: Ron Haskins, Brookings Institution, Washington D.C.

Harry Holzer, Georgetown University, Washington D.C.

10-10:15 a.m.

State Team Time: What to Expect

Get ready! Legislators who have attended previous meetings discuss the value of state action planning for working families in their states. Participants then break into state teams to discuss what economic opportunity for families looks like in their state and identify issues to work on during the meeting.

Speaker: Senator Sue Crawford, Nebraska

10:15-11:30 a.m.
Breakout Rooms

State Team Time

Get acquainted and begin to discuss the big issues facing families in your state and the state of economic security for these families. Assistance provided by NCSL staff.

Lunch

Enjoy lunch with your colleagues.

1-2 p.m.

State Workforce Innovations

States can play a crucial role in providing workforce development opportunities that lead to prosperous careers. Learn about an array of policies—including efforts to fill the skills gap, expand access to credentials and provide training specific to employers' needs—that states are adopting to shape the workforce of tomorrow.

Moderator: Senator Kathy Klausmeier, Maryland

Speaker: Brooke DeRenzis, National Skills Coalition, Washington D.C.

2-2:45 p.m.

A Conversation with Dr. Nancy McCallin

In the world of higher education, community colleges are becoming a sort of “renaissance man.” They not only offer degrees and certificates that lead to good jobs, they work with employers to develop relevant coursework serving diverse and non-traditional students and provide services to help students succeed. This session will start a conversation about what the modern day community college system looks like—and propel us to think about where these institutions are headed.

Moderator: Julie Bell, NCSL, Colorado

Speaker: Dr. Nancy McCallin, Colorado Community College System, Colorado

2:45-3:15 p.m.

Books Before Babies

Why would the National Campaign to Prevent Teen and Unplanned Pregnancy be interested in working with community colleges? It's a good question that has gotten legislators in Arkansas and Mississippi thinking and creating legislation, too. This session will explore legislative efforts and the campaign's work to reduce unplanned births and support parents, through an avenue that might not seem like an apparent fit: the community college system.

Moderator: Kate Blackman, NCSL, Colorado

Speaker: Katherine Suellentrop, National Campaign to Prevent Teen and Unplanned Pregnancy, Washington, D.C.

3:30-5 p.m.

Breakout Rooms

State Team Time

Discuss strategies, identify priority issues to focus on and develop an action plan.

Speaker: Jessica Hathaway, NCSL, Colorado

9-10 a.m.

A 21st Century Look at Economic Opportunity

Economists refer to the Great Recession as the "balance sheet recession." What did we learn about the economic reality for families during the recession, what do our finances look like today and how can policy support families in the future?

Moderator: Senator Joe Bolkcom, Iowa

Speaker: Bill Emmons, Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis, Missouri

10-11 a.m.

State Policies to Support Financial Wellbeing

Financial wellbeing—the ability to pay your bills, weather unexpected financial emergencies, save money and know how to navigate financial systems—is a critical goal to support working families. But we also know this can be complicated to achieve. Hear about innovative and promising programs and practices that are shifting financial wellbeing efforts in today's world.

Moderator: Representative Mary Jane Wallner, New Hampshire

Speakers: Mary Dupont, Stand By Me, Delaware
Jessica Hathaway, NCSL, Colorado

11-11:15 a.m.

Break

11:15 a.m.-12:15 p.m.

Legislating for Results

Policy that achieves its aims to solve today's problems is the ultimate goal. How do we balance this with innovative and emerging policy solutions? Learn about how state legislatures identify effective policies and programs as part of the appropriations process and discuss how to balance innovation and evidence.

Moderator: Mary Fairchild, NCSL, Colorado

Speakers: Charles Sallee, Legislative Finance Committee, New Mexico
