2015 MSDA National Medicaid and CHIP Oral Health Symposium

AGENDA

*Patient Centered Integrated Healthcare:
Opportunities for Medicaid and CHIP Programs, Managed Care Organizations,
Payers and Plans, Educators, and Providers*
11.0 CEUs

2015 Symposium Goals

To empower Medicaid and CHIP dental program administrators and stakeholders with knowledge;
To build leadership and collaboration to improve oral health, oral healthcare, and reduce costs associated with oral health care delivery.

2015 Symposium Strategy

The 2015 MSDA National Medicaid and CHIP Oral Health Symposium will build on last year's symposium that addressed the administrative changes states are making, and the increasing trend of contracting with non-governmental administrators such as Managed Care Organizations. Medicaid stakeholders continue to seek ways to improve healthcare delivery and are exploring integrated models of patient-centered healthcare delivery.

New administrative and service delivery models claim to offer improved coordination, collaboration, cooperation, and communication across and between state agencies, health systems, payment systems, providers, and beneficiaries. Such models are being tested, and early lessons are being noted at the state, healthcare systems, and payer levels.

Efforts to train healthcare professionals in interdisciplinary healthcare and to more effectively integrate oral healthcare services into the overall healthcare delivery system are taking place in professional education institutions across the country. Despite these efforts however, challenges and barriers related to coding and the integration of patient electronic health (medical/dental) records at the systems level continue to exist.

Representatives from state Medicaid and CHIP programs; contractors; educators; providers; and others who have experience with these new kinds of models will share information and provide key information and the results of early lessons.

The agenda will include sessions that illustrate a vision of effective and efficient integrated healthcare, with specialized content for states, providers, educators, contractors, and policy makers.
