9:00AM – 11:30AM Skills Session: It Was Never About Time Management Anyway
Location: Inn at Penn – Suite 300
Speaker: Pam Vaccaro, President, Designs on Time

This session takes the basic tenets of good time and focus management to a new level of integration with leadership strategies. Good leaders send a message that they know where they are going and how to get the team doing the same in the most effective and efficient way. The program emphasizes the importance of a leader's message to colleagues... "I value your time and together we will get things done."

12:00 – 1:45 PM Lunch Session: Challenges Facing the Scientific Community and Implications for Public Policy
Location: Annenberg School for Communication at Penn – Room 500
3620 Walnut Street (36th and Walnut Streets)
Speaker: Kathleen Hall Jamieson, Annenberg School for Communications (confirmed)

In recent years, media reports have suggested that science is in crisis. Problems supposedly plaguing science include an increase in the rate and number of retractions, corruption of the peer review process, major findings that have been unable to be reproduced by business and industry and the suggestion that the statistics underlying some scientific investigations have been misapplied or misinterpreted. This presentation will recap what we know about the severity and prevalence of these problems, outline efforts to address them and examine the implications for use of scientific evidence in public policy deliberations.

2:00 PM – 4:30 PM

Skills Session: Consensus Building & Dispute Resolution

Location: Inn at Penn – Suite 603

Speaker: David Landis, Senate President (retired), Nebraska

This session focuses on finding joint gain among parties searching for agreement. Short active learning experiences identify useful tools that be uncovered and applied in conflict situations. Patterns one is likely to see at the table are made explicit and best practices are identified. A fast paced session, many attendees find it relevant practical and applicable to legislative and non-legislative contexts.
