NCSL Health Policy Seminar 2024

The Darcy Hotel | Washington D.C. | June 27-28, 2024

This seminar is designed for state legislators and legislative staff who are experienced or emerging health leaders to expand their knowledge through connecting with other state leaders and experts from across the country. The seminar will help lawmakers and legislative staff better understand evidence-based state policy options, promising practices, noteworthy innovations and considerations.

Objectives include:

- Increase knowledge about state roles in health and policy options to improve populations’ health and health systems.
- Learn about the most recent data and evidence-based strategies related to public health topics; including but not limited to health care costs and prices, health workforce, substance use disorder, infectious disease, disease forecasting and outbreak analytics, immunization, oral health, and supporting older adults and aging in place, among others.
- Network with state legislators and staff from other states who have an interest in health.
- Share your health policy concerns, interests and successes from your own state with colleagues and national leaders.

11:15-12:15 p.m. Logan Ballroom	Concurrent Session 4A: Healthy Smiles: Considerations for Dental Care Access Among Adults Every 15 seconds in America, someone shows up at a hospital emergency department because of a dental issue, and each year $45 billion is lost in productivity because of untreated oral disease. Legislators will hear about trends in access to oral health care, how they differ by income, geography and race, as well as the state of the adult Medicaid benefit. Attendees will then hear about considerations moving forward including medical loss ratio in dentistry, oral health as a Federal essential health benefit, workforce considerations and other emerging topics. Moderator: Kendall Speer, NCSL Speaker: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Brittany Flynn, manager, Health Policy Institute, American Dental Association
11:15-12:15 p.m. Bader Ginsburg	Concurrent Session 4B: Fostering a Diverse Health Workforce to Improve Health Outcomes Research suggests a diverse and representative health care workforce may improve patient health care access, satisfaction and outcomes. Even so, the health care workforce in the U.S. does not accurately reflect the diversity of the population. Several states have identified strategies to bolster diversity among health care professionals, including collecting and analyzing health workforce data, establishing career pathways, creating workplace supports, providing financial incentives, and designing education on cultural competency and responsiveness. This session will highlight existing challenges and opportunities for states to foster a diverse health workforce to address health needs across the U.S. Moderator: Kelsie George, NCSL Speakers: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Isha Williams, vice president of marketing, Pulmonary Hypertension, The Janssen Pharmaceutical Companies of Johnson & Johnson • Maria Portela Martinez, MD, assistant professor of emergency medicine, assistant professor of health policy and management, George Washington University School of Medicine & Health Sciences, Fitzhugh Mullan Institute for Health Workforce Equity • Senator David Wilson, Alaska • Assemblywoman Michelle Salages, New York
12:15-1:30 p.m. Ellington and Bader Ginsburg	Health Policy Roundtable Discussions and Lunch Attendees will have an opportunity to connect with national experts, NCSL subject matter experts and their peers on health policy topics during lunch. There will be an optional walk, weather permitting.
1:30-2:20 p.m. Logan Ballroom	Plenary (5): Childhood Vaccination Trends State childhood vaccine policies began in the mid-1800s and by the 1980s all states had vaccine requirements for school entry. During the pandemic, routine vaccination rates for kindergartners declined after holding steady for over a decade and have yet to rebound. This session will examine

	some historical vaccination outcomes, highlight recent trends in childhood vaccination, address questions and concerns about vaccination, and present strategies around vaccination access. Moderator: Shannon Kolman, NCSL Speakers: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Melissa Briggs Hagen, MD, CAPT, US Public Health Service, Acting Chief Medical Officer Immunization Services Division, CDC • Daniel Salman, professor and director, Institute for Vaccine Safety, Johns Hopkins Bloomberg School of Public Health
2:20-2:45 p.m. Logan Ballroom	Plenary (6): Disease Forecasting and Outbreak Analytics to Support Policymaking Policymakers need to make decisions to prevent illness and allocate resources in response to public health threats. Disease forecasts and analytics can help transform data into strategies for decision-makers at all levels around disease outbreaks and epidemics. This session will examine the need for the growing field of disease forecasting and highlight the work of the new CDC Center for Forecasting and Outbreak Analytics to support policymaking. Moderator: Kelly Hughes, NCSL Speaker: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Jason Asher, director, Predict Division, Center for Forecasting and Outbreak Analytics, CDC
2:45-3 p.m.	Break and Transition
3-3:45 p.m. Logan Ballroom	Concurrent Session 7A: Happy at Home: State Strategies to Support Older Adults Aging in Place Most older adults want to remain in their homes as they age, and home- and community-based care tend to be more cost-effective than institutional care. This session will highlight state strategies to improve HCBS services, including addressing waiver waitlists; investing in the direct care workforce; and addressing social drivers of health, such as housing. Moderator: Samantha Scotti, NCSL Speakers: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Rachel Neely, director of LTSS policy, ADvancing States • Caroline Ryan, deputy director, Center for Innovation and Partnerships, Administration for Community Living
3-3:45 p.m. Bader Ginsburg	Concurrent Session 7B: Dive into Disease Forecasting and Analytic Tools for Policymaking This session is designed to assist legislative staff and others who are interested in learning about the availability and uses of disease forecasts and outbreak analytic tools to support their work. Practical guidance will be offered on: how different types of disease forecasts can inform various stages of a disease outbreak; how to access and best utilize available forecasting tools, models, and analytics; and how disease forecasts can inform state policies. Moderator: Shannon Kolman, NCSL Speakers: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Isaac Ghinai, team lead for external engagement, Inform Division, Center for Forecasting and Outbreak Analytics, CDC • Nina Masters, epidemiologist, National Center for Immunization and Respiratory Diseases, CDC • Kaitlyn Johnson, data scientist and technical lead, Center for Forecasting and Outbreak Analytics, CDC

10:15 – 11:15 a.m. Logan Ballroom	Plenary (10): State and Local Infrastructure and Workforce Strategies to Address Public Health Challenges State and local public health departments have protected and improved the health of communities by reducing the burden of diseases and other public health threats since the first health department was established in 1799. Since then, the field of public health has continued to adapt and evolve based on emerging health threats and community needs. This session will showcase state strategies and innovations to modify and enhance the public health infrastructure—including recruitment and retention of the public health workforce. Moderator: Shannan Kalman, NCSL Speakers: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Lindsey Myers, vice president for public health workforce & infrastructure, Association of State and Territorial Health Officials • Ralph Alvarado, MD, FACP, commissioner, Tennessee Department of Health • Sameer Vahra, MD, JD, director, Illinois Department of Public Health

11:15-11:30 a.m.	Break
11:30-12:30 p.m. Logan Ballroom	Plenary (11): Supporting Youth Mental Health Mental health conditions and disorders among children and adolescents have been on the rise for years. Current data suggests, more than 4 in 10 students felt persistently sad or hopeless, nearly one-third experienced poor mental health and more than 1 in 5 students seriously considered suicide. Learning to identify and treat mental health warning signs and symptoms can increase the ability of children and adolescents to develop coping and resiliency skills that help them learn, behave, handle their emotions and develop a positive quality of life into adulthood. This session will introduce attendees to different strategies policymakers can consider to prevent, intervene and treat youth mental health conditions. Moderator: Tammy Hill, NCSL Speaker: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Bill Smith, Founder & CEO, Inseparable • Representative Kyle Brown, Colorado • Nelson Jarrin, JD, senior vice president of state policy, Meadows Mental Health Policy Institute
12:30-2 p.m. Logan Ballroom	Closing Plenary (12): The Future of Public Health and Health Care Dr. Jha is recognized globally as a trusted expert on major issues impacting public health, and a catalyst for new thinking and approaches. A long-time leader on pandemic preparedness and response, from directing groundbreaking research on Ebola to serving on the frontlines of the COVID-19 response, he has led national and international analysis of key issues and advised local and federal policymakers around the world. Lunch will be provided prior to the discussion. Moderator: Kelly Hughes, NCSL Speaker: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Ashish Jha, MD, dean, Brown University School of Public Health
