NATIONAL CONFERENCE of STATE LEGISLATURES

The Future of Elections: Agenda and Resources

6/16/2017

June 14-16, 2017 | Williamsburg, Va.

In the historic setting of Colonial Williamsburg, join us for a three-day conference where we will discuss the future of elections technology and how to pay for it. We'll bring together legislators, legislative staff, election officials, and election administration experts from across the country to cross-pollinate ideas about how to update the nation's voting infrastructure in an era of limited resources and heightened security concerns.

Visit the conference homepage for information about registration, travel and other logistic

Elections Security: What States Can Do

Dogwood Ballroom

The desire to achieve secure elections does not lend itself to an easy legislative mandate. Few understand what the Department of Homeland Security's critical infrastructure designation act means for states. Hear from national experts about the federal, state and local role in procedure and cyber security of elections.

Moderator:

Adam Ambrogi, Democracy Fund

Presenters:

Secretary of State Denise Merrill, Connecticut

Representative Esau, Kansas, Interstate Voter Registration Crosscheck

Senator Kagan, Maryland

Trends and Trendsetters in Post-election Audits and Recounts

Legislative trends point toward an interest in better audit and recount laws. First, what is a post-election audit? What's at the cutting edge of post-election audits? (A hint: risk-limiting audits, pioneering this year statewide in Colorado.) And what makes a good recount law, a question posed by many after the 2016 presidential election?

Moderator:

Secretary of State Barbara Cegavske, Nevada

Presenters:

Dwight Shellman, Colorado, Risk-Limiting Audits in Colorado

Mark Halvorson, Citizens for Election Integrity Minnesota

Nikki Baines Charlson, Maryland, 2016 Post Election Audits in Maryland

Noon-1:30 p.m. Reliving the 1789 Presidential Election: Lunch and entertainment

Dogwood Ballroom

To provide a break in the day's substantive programming, actors from Colonial Williamsburg will reenact the first presidential election while you enjoy a delicious sponsored lunch. You won't want to miss President-elect George Washington's acceptance speech.

1:45-3 p.m. Elections Tech Procurement and Funding from the State Perspective

Dogwood Ballroom

Task forces, hearings, RFPs, vendor demonstrations, testing and certification, maintenance contracts, appropriating funds...procuring elections technology is no easy task for state legislatures. Perhaps the most challenging part of replacing a voting system is figuring out who and how to foot the bill. Federal funding is nowhere in sight, state legislatures are faced with competing priorities, and county budgets are strapped. Luckily we have veterans of the process geared up to guide us through lessons learned and advice for your state.

Moderator:

Amanda Buchanan, NCSL

Presenters:

Secretary of State Nellie Gorbea, Rhode Island

Senator Murante, Nebraska

Where the Rubber Meets the Road: State Statutes & the Certification Process

*Rubber

Road:
Cascades*

States—not the feds—certify election equipment. And yet, state certification of elections technology usually relies in whole or in part on federal voluntary guidelines. Federal laws also set the stage for accessibility requirements so that all voters have equal opportunity to participate in our democracy. As states explore technology upgrades from existing technology, state certification statutes may need to be upgraded too. Hear some recent examples to help you stay ahead of the curve.
