*Alexis Balkey, BA, RAS, FDC TTA Program Manager, Children and Family Futures
Phil Breitenbacher, MSW, Director, FDC TTA Programs, Children and Family Futures*

With over 300 FDCs now in operation across the nation, FDC outcomes have shown significantly higher rates of parents' participation in substance use disorder treatment, longer stays in treatment, higher rates of family reunification, less time for children in foster care, and decreased incidence of repeat maltreatment and return to out-of-home care compared to non-family drug court participants (Marlowe & Carey, 2012). FDCs are able to achieve these outcomes through several common practices or ingredients. This workshop will explore the Big Seven - system of identifying families; timely access to assessment and treatment services; enhanced case management and recovery support; improved family services and focus on parent-child relationships; increased judicial oversight, contingency management, and collaborative approach and efficient information sharing. This presentation will explore the barriers and challenges that FDC teams have encountered in implementing these ingredients as well as the innovative solutions that were formulated to ensure effective practice. This workshop will be the "nuts and bolts" that hold effective FDCs together. Technical assistance and training resources through the National FDC Training and Technical Assistance Program will also be provided to support implementation.

Drug Courts across the country are faced with developing practice and policy to address the opioid crisis (i.e., heroin and prescription pain medications) and its impact on families. There are many drug court professionals involved in decisions for parenting and pregnant women with opioid use disorders including child welfare, substance use disorder treatment, and court professionals. In cases involving pregnant women, additional service providers, such as the woman's primary care/OB-GYN team, are involved in treatment and service decisions responding to directives from their organizations. The opioid crisis prompts an expansion of drug court partners, particularly, providers of medicated-assisted treatment (MAT) and in cases involving pregnant women, the woman's primary care/OB-GYN team. This workshop presentation will challenge preconceived notions regarding opioid use disorders and treatment. The presenter will explore strategies for drug courts to adequately respond to the opioid crisis including: 1) an increased understanding of clinical standards of care in the treatment of opioid use disorders; 2) expanding the scope of the collaborative to ensure that the needs of both children and parents are met; and, 3) how to implement the CAPTA Plan of Safe Care to improve outcomes for affected families.

The results from the toxicological analysis may be used as evidence to support an opinion of drug impairment. Forensic Toxicology may also be used to monitor the drug use of individuals within prison populations, or those who are out on parole or are being overseen through a Drug Court. The most common issues associated with Forensic Toxicology, from testing to interpretation, will be covered during this session.

Incentives, Sanctions and Therapeutic Responses: Essential Elements (A2) Terrence Walton, MSW, CSAC, Chief Operating Officer, National Association of Drug Court Professionals Incentives, sanctions, and other responses are essential tools of the treatment court team. However, to get good results, Drug Court teams must base their responses on scientific strategies. This session will summarize the findings from behavior modification research and outline the key components of an effective response strategy. Special guidance will be given on how to respond when participants seem unresponsive to sanctions or incentives, even when correctly applied.
10:45 AM - 12:00 PM	B2: Drugged Driving (B2) Honorable Mary Celeste, Retired Judge, Denver, Colorado Over the last few years there has been a large increase in drugged driving and it is anticipated that within 10 years drugged driving will surpass alcohol and driving. This is due in part to the legalization of marijuana, the increase use and abuse of prescription medications, the opiate epidemic, the aging population, and designer drugs. This presentation will define drugged driving and educate court professionals about the national and local prevalence of drugged driving along with how and why they need to modify their approaches to drug court and probation terms and conditions and treatment to meet the changing laws and policies related to driving under the influence of prescription medications, marijuana and opiates.

Drug testing has proven to be a key tool in the effective use of opioids, minimizing those harms through identification of opioid use and abuse. However, understanding testing options for the many opioids available and the interpretation of test results remains an issue of confusion. This presentation will address the use and misuse of various opioids, methods for their detection, and the clinical interpretation of test results.

G2: Gambling and the Criminal Justice System (G2)

Fred Fetta, LPC, NCGC-II, BACC, Clinical Director of Problem Gambling, Department of Mental Health and Addictions (DMHAS) Services

Susan D. McLaughlin, MPA, CPP, Prevention Services Coordinator, DMHAS - Problem Gambling Services
Jeremy Wampler, LCSW, LA DC, NCGC-II, Program Director for the State of CT, DMHAS - Problem Gambling Services

This training will focus on the issue of disordered gambling and the intersection with the Criminal Justice System. Persons with a gambling disorder may commit crimes to get the monies they need to continue their addictive behavior. Unlike offenders with drug and/or alcohol addictions, disordered gamblers can go through the entire criminal justice process without ever discussing or revealing their gambling addiction. This results in lack of access to services and diversionary options, and increased risk for re-offense. This training will help to raise awareness about gambling in the Criminal Justice system and discuss practical and no cost ways to integrate gambling into already existing protocols, including adding brief, evidenced-based screens. Workshop will include lecture, media, and group discussion.

E. Workshop Session II

3:00 PM - 4:15 PM	K2. Judicial Leadership Principles: Application to Practice (K2) Caroline Cooper, MA, JD, Consultant Honorable Robert Russell, Presiding Judge, Buffalo Veterans Treatment Court Honorable Robert Ziemian, President, NEADCP Drug Courts rely on the active collaboration of many agencies and disciplines, working with the court to provide treatment and related services to drug addicted defendants – many with associated mental health disorders. Developing and sustaining effective partnerships with these agencies – e.g., the many "moving parts" upon which drug courts depend – is critical to ensuring the effectiveness of drug court programs and sustaining positive outcomes for drug court participants. This session will address for newer Drug Court judges in particular -and others -the leadership role that Drug Court judges need to play to sustain Drug Court programs and ensure that all of the "moving parts" are operating in sync and to promote the continuing broad scale multi-agency involvement under the court's leadership that is essential for Drug Courts to be effective. The session will draw upon the experiences and perspectives of founding Drug Court judges over the years and will build on the Judicial Leadership Initiative Principles that have been developed by a committee of 60+ drug court judges and other practitioners under the auspices of the BJA Drug Court Technical Assistance Project. The various components of this "leadership" role will be discussed during the session, with particular attention to common situations and scenarios that regularly arise. with the overall focus upon promoting an understanding of the important role Drug Court judges must play outside of the courtroom to ensure that the essential drug court "systems" that do not traditionally work together are doing so productively and in conformity with evidence based practices. The session discussions will build on a series of hypothetical scenarios in which these principles can be applied.

Terrence Walton, MSW, CSAC, Chief Operating Officer, National Association of Drug Court Professionals

The treatment court field has always sought to avoid or eliminate racial, ethnic, cultural, gender based, and other disparities and disproportionality. With the release of the Adult Drug Court Best Practice Standards in 2013 and its standard requiring equity in drug courts, the field now has specific guidance on identifying and correcting lack of equity. Treatment courts have an affirmative obligation to ensure fairness in admissions, treatment services, incentives and sanctions, graduation opportunities, and post-program outcomes. Central to meeting this obligation is collecting and analyzing related data. During this session, Mr. Walton will discuss problems (and solutions) that surface when attempting to acquire data, understand it, and take actions to address disparities and related problems.

N2. Expanding Existing Treatment Courts to the DWI Offender (N2)

Honorable Peggy Davis, Commissioner, 31st Judicial Circuit - Springfield, Missouri
James Eberspacher, Director, National Center for DWI Courts

The body of evidence supporting treatment courts, including DWI courts, is clear; treatment courts work. With research supporting the efficacy of DWI courts, why aren't more jurisdictions embracing the model and implementing them in their communities? Lack of resources, staff time, and tough financial climates are a few of the reasons jurisdictions are unable to develop a DWI court. In this session, attendees will understand the differences of the DWI-offending population and effective interventions used to treat them. Additionally, the speakers will discuss strategies to overcome these barriers and implement the most effective intervention for a significant public safety issue facing all communities.

Drug Courts across the country are faced with developing practice and policy to address the opioid crisis (i.e., heroin and prescription pain medications) and its impact on families. There are many drug court professionals involved in decisions for parenting and pregnant women with opioid use disorders including child welfare, substance use disorder treatment, and court professionals. In cases involving pregnant women, additional service providers, such as the woman's primary care/OB-GYN team, are involved in treatment and service decisions responding to directives from their organizations. The opioid crisis prompts an expansion of drug court partners, particularly, providers of medicated-assisted treatment (MAT) and in cases involving pregnant women, the woman's primary care/OB-GYN team. This workshop presentation will challenge preconceived notions regarding opioid use disorders and treatment. The presenter will explore strategies for drug courts to adequately respond to the opioid crisis including: 1) an increased understanding of clinical standards of care in the treatment of opioid use disorders; 2) expanding the scope of the collaborative to ensure that the needs of both children and parents are met; and, 3) how to implement the CAPTA Plan of Safe Care to improve outcomes for affected families.

Forensic Toxicology may also be used to monitor the drug use of individuals within prison populations, or those who are out on parole or are being overseen through a Drug Court. The most common issues associated with Forensic Toxicology, from testing to interpretation, will be covered during this session.
