

OFFICE OF THE VICE PRESIDENT
WASHINGTON

May 14, 1956

Dear Styles:

I know of no source from which a note such as yours of April 27 is more welcome.

I've said it -- but I'd like to write it, too -- and that is that I value greatly your friendship, of which I've had tangible evidence on more than one occasion.

New Hampshire, its most able Senior Senator and his charming wife, will always occupy a very special place in the hearts of the Nixons.

With kindest regards,

Sincerely,

Dear Styles:

I can't resist the impulse, in spite of the many times I have written you, to do so once again in deep appreciation for the most recent "blows for liberty" which you have struck.

If your correspondence file is growing, it's really your fault because you keep doing so many things in my behalf. Believe me, it's good to know we're wearing the same colors.

With all good wishes,

Sincerely,

Richard Nixon

Dear Styles:

I want you to know how deeply I appreciated your wiring as you did with regard to my father.

The past few weeks have been trying ones and particularly so for my mother, who during the last two years has devoted her life to caring for my father.

For her and for all of us, the messages we have received from our friends have been a great source of comfort and strength.

With every good wish to you both,

Sincerely,

Dear Styles:

Both Pat and I have spoken to you personally, but I also want to take this opportunity to express to you, more formally, how much we appreciated the work you did to make the Inauguration the smooth running success that it was. Of course, this time we had some experience to learn from, but from all sides I am getting letters commenting on the fact that the events could not have been handled more efficiently than they were.

I am sure for millions of Americans the luncheon you and Doloris gave was the high spot of the whole week end. I am well aware that a successful affair like that just doesn't happen. Hours of planning had to go into it and we want you to know of our special thanks for this pleasant and memorable occasion.

In fact, the only time the arrangements seemed to get crossed was at the Festival and we were sorry plans for our meeting the Escort Committee did not work out as scheduled. We appreciate the intended courtesy just as much as if it had been accomplished.

With all good wishes,

Sincerely,

Dear Styles:

You were certainly thoughtful to send me, along with your letter of July 2, one of the original prints of the film which was made of the Inauguration under the direction of the Joint Congressional Committee.

It will be a permanent reminder of a memorable occasion and I am sure you know how much I appreciate your seeing that I received it.

With appreciation and every good wish,

Sincerely,

Richard Nixon
