CSG Policy Academy: Making Waves with State Water Policies

(open to all registered national conference attendees)

8 a.m. - 5 p.m.

Water issues are some of the most important policy questions facing state officials across the nation. Hurricane Harvey unleashed more than 9 trillion gallons of water and dumped more than an average year's worth of rainfall in some places—leaving underwater as much as 30 percent of Harris County, home to Houston, our nation's fourth largest city. Science tells us that flooding is becoming more common and severe, meaning that hurricanes like Harvey and Irma are likely harbingers of disasters to come. The water crisis in Flint, Michigan, resulted in an estimated $385 billion in social costs, stemming from toxic levels of lead in the city's drinking water. Other water issues, including water quality improvements, droughts, water resource management, integrated water planning and the impacts of new federal regulations, raise a host of policy concerns for state leaders now and in the future. This one-day policy academy will explore a variety of these topics and highlight innovative policies being adopted across the country.

Growing a Consensus on Marijuana Policy

8:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m.

More than half of states have now legalized marijuana use—recreational or medicinal. That's a massive shift in policy from just a decade ago. With this shift comes a slew of legislative, regulatory and fiscal questions for state policymakers to tackle. This day-long policy forum will provide an overview of the current legal landscape and best practices for taxation, regulation and licensing. The forum will discuss emerging trends and provide attendees direct exposure to Nevada's marijuana legalization experience.

The Time is Now to Eliminate the Rural Broadband Gap

CSG Innovation Classroom presented by Microsoft Corporation

The time is right for the nation to set an ambitious but achievable goal: eliminate the rural broadband gap within the next five years. Microsoft aims to meet this goal by July 4, 2022, by working on projects directly with partners, offering digital skills training for people of all ages, and stimulating investments by others through technology licensing. During this session, /

You will learn more about how Microsoft will invest its own resources to work as a catalyst for broader market adoption, and the important role government will play to eliminate the broadband gap.

Purpose and Persistence: Delivering the First FDA-Approved Gene Therapy to Fight Cancer

CSG Innovation Classroom presented by Novartis Pharmaceuticals

This session will dive into the science and clinical benefit around the first FDA-approved cell and gene therapy. From the time of filing to the FDA approval of Kymriah™ on Aug. 30, 2017, Novartis has led this latest groundbreaking chapter in cancer therapy as part of its ongoing endeavor to treat patients in areas of unmet medical need. Kymriah™ represents a revolutionary treatment option for pediatric and young adult patients with relapsed or refractory B-cell ALL. It is the embodiment of personalized medicine. Unlike traditional therapies, each dose is tailored individually to, and manufactured for, each patient using the patient's own blood cells via pioneering technology and a sophisticated process.

Steps to Success with the Every Student Succeeds Act

Presented by CSG Education & Workforce Development Public Policy Committee

8:30-10 a.m.

This 90-minute session will be a helpful tool for state leaders to learn about state ESSA plans and the innovative education practices and policies each state proposed. Speakers from the U.S. Department of Education and the Education Commission of the States will lead a discussion on the shared challenges and possible policy solutions that are addressed through ESSA. This session will also cover the projected top five issues in education and workforce for 2018.

The Who, Watt, When of Modernizing Power Grids

Presented by CSG Energy & Environment Public Policy Committee

8:30-10 a.m.

In states across the country, few topics are as hot with state policymakers as grid modernization. From California and New York to Ohio and Nevada, states and utilities are investigating how best to upgrade the electric power grid to enhance its efficiency and integrate more clean energy technologies. At the same time, large scale investment in grid modernization triggers key questions: Is it worth it? How can states maximize the potential benefits of grid modernization? As utilities come to the table for grid modernization funds, state policymakers have an opportunity to plan now to get ahead of the process and generate the most benefits from those investments. This session will explore strategies for wisely designing a grid modernization program that can guide utility investment and increase the chances that customers get the most out of grid modernization efforts.

Finance CommitteeDeveloping a Cybersecurity Strategy

CSG Policy Workshop

8:30-10 a.m.

Technology is constantly changing and evolving. In tandem, cybersecurity threats are evolving and becoming more sophisticated—and states are under attack. This session will explore several proven ways that your state can be more prepared to face the cybersecurity threat from both an offensive and a defensive position.

NCIC Summit of the States Opening Session:Interstate Compacts 101

NCIC sessions are open to all registered CSG 2017 National Conference attendees

8:30-10 a.m.

This panel will examine the evolution and current use of interstate compacts, discuss the history of interstate compacts and examine the scope of interstate problems states now tackle through compacts. Additionally, this panel will explore other forms of multistate cooperation and discuss why compacts are generally viewed as a superior solution to foster interstate cooperation, protect consumers and guard state sovereignty. As policy makers confront issues from health care delivery to infrastructure revitalization, interstate compacts allow states to work collaboratively across state lines to bring resolution to some of America's most pressing issues with innovation and a unified voice.

	All Trade is Local
	Presented by CSG International Committee
10:30 a.m.-Noon	International trade and investments from foreign nations are major contributors to the United States economy and help support millions of good-paying jobs throughout state and local communities. In today's global economy, it is imperative that state and local governments play a leading role in coordinating and developing an international trade and investment strategy that gets their community ready to engage and compete in the global marketplace. This session will highlight how state leaders can further engage in international trade, including trade policy and trade promotion.

	Professional Licensing from Plumbers to Physicians
	CSG Policy Workshop
10:30 a.m.-Noon	More than a quarter of U.S. workers now require a license to do their jobs, with most of these workers licensed by the states. States across the country are striving to engage more people in the workforce and at the same time protect the public interest. This session will cover innovative and successful models of state licensure for professions, as state leaders balance consumer protections, flexibility and accessibility for workers.
	The Business Incentives Trap
	Presented by CSG Fiscal & Economic Development Public Policy Committee
10:30 a.m.-Noon	States spend billions each year on tax and financial incentives and in some states, tax expenditures can exceed revenues. The costs can also be unpredictable. The costs of some state tax incentive programs have increased quickly and unexpectedly by tens or hundreds of millions of dollars. With every public dollar being scrutinized, it is important to ask—are these incentives getting the scrutiny they deserve?
	NCIC Summit of the States: Best Practices for Administering Interstate Compacts
	Open to all registered CSG 2017 National Conference attendees
10:30 a.m.-Noon	This panel will feature a wide-ranging discussion with interstate compact administrators about the best practices they have discovered including general governance, funding, data sharing, appointment of commissioners, engaging partners with MOUs, transparency, administrative rulemaking, and interaction with state executive and legislative branch officials. It will feature distinct perspectives from established compacts and compacts that have recently created their administrative structure.

Tobacco, Ebola and Public-Private Partnerships — Harnessing Innovation for Public Good and Economic Growth

CSG Innovation Classroom presented by RAI Services Company

Hugh Haydon will present a fascinating account of how Kentucky BioProcessing's, or KBP's, innovative use of tobacco plants helped save the lives of American missionaries infected with Ebola during the 2014 West Africa pandemic. Haydon will share how his background in economic development spurred KBP's creation and emergence as a leader in using tobacco plants for biotechnology applications. And he will detail how public-private partnerships can identify and collaboratively commercialize untapped resources to drive economic growth.

Creating Transparency, Openness and Trust: A Modern Approach to Redistricting

CSG Innovation Classroom presented by Esri Inc.

The criteria that states use to create and redraw legislative district lines vary greatly. Their processes range from simple to highly technical and politically complex. To the public, the redistricting process is a bit of a mystery. When left with a mystery, they fill the void with questions about transparency, openness and trust. This session will offer a different way to think about the redistricting process, one that addresses the technical and political needs but engages the public, too.

NCIC Summit of the States:

Interstate Compacts and State Legislatures

Open to all registered CSG 2017 National Conference attendees

This session will cover updates on what happened with interstate compact legislation in 2017 and what is coming up in 2018. The panel will also examine best practices for educating legislators and legislative staff about interstate compacts and maintaining that knowledge in the face of legislative transition. The panel will discuss the growing importance of legislatures in overseeing compact agencies and discuss whether states can meet the minimum standards required by an interstate compact, while permitting additional protections or accommodations.

The Uncertain Future of Health Care

Presented by CSG Health Public Policy Committee

2:30-4 p.m.

As Congress worked to repeal and replace the Affordable Care Act in 2017, it became clear that Americans across the political spectrum care deeply about health care policy—and that state leaders are not willing to stand by and wait. Top issues identified in public opinion polling include high prescription drug costs, rising health insurance premiums, unsustainable Medicaid spending and the alarming opioid epidemic gripping the nation. While states must necessarily accommodate federal health policy, state leaders are actively involved in working across partisan lines and developing state solutions to these issues that are results-oriented and evidence-based. This session will examine the ways in which states are both reacting to federal efforts and leading the charge to create sound health policy.

Nevada Drives Transportation Policy into the Future

Presented by CSG Transportation & Infrastructure Public Policy Committee

2:30-4 p.m.

Nevada is home to the Tesla Gigafactory, where lithium-ion batteries for electric cars are being manufactured. The state is a test bed for Hyperloop One technology, for unmanned aerial systems and for connected and automated vehicles. Nevada was the first to pass autonomous vehicle legislation in 2011. With Project NEON, Nevada has undertaken the largest public works project in its history, which will widen the busiest stretch of highway in Las Vegas. The director of the Nevada Department of Transportation, Rudy Malfabon, will discuss how these and other initiatives are driving his state forward. Plus, the committee will engage in interactive policy discussions on the takeaways from this summer's CSG Autonomous and Connected Vehicle Policy Academy in Detroit and a busy year for state transportation funding efforts around the country.

Improving the State and Federal Connection

Presented by the CSG Intergovernmental Affairs Committee

10:30 a.m.-Noon When the federal government issues regulations or passes legislation without proper consultation with state leaders, state priorities may be adversely impacted and problems result. An active and lively federalism requires greater interaction and cooperation between federal policymakers and states to assure the state's needs and goals are met. The Intergovernmental Affairs Committee will take an in-depth look at how states and the federal government work together during the policymaking process, and will examine what effective "consultation" should look like.

Success Improving Voting for Overseas Citizens

CSG Policy Workshop

10:30 a.m.-Noon For decades, members of the U.S. military and their dependents have faced obstacles at every step of the overseas voting process: registering to vote, requesting and receiving absentee ballots, and returning absentee ballots. Over the last four years, CSG's Overseas Voting Initiative orchestrated three advisory working groups comprised of state and local election administrators to research and formulate recommendations that could be adopted to improve the overseas absentee voting process. This session will be CSG Overseas Voting Initiative's final presentation to CSG membership as it wraps up a four year partnership with the U.S. Department of Defense's Federal Voting Assistance Program designed to improve the return rate of overseas absentee ballots from service members and U.S. citizens abroad.

NCIC Summit of the States: Legal Roundtable

Open to all registered CSG 2017 National Conference attendees

10:30 a.m.-Noon

In this session, NCIC will provide an annual review of interstate compact case law from the previous year. Recent court cases on both the state and federal level have shown that the interstate compact mechanism must interact with all three branches of state and federal government. Panelists will provide an update on recent developments in the courts and explore the potential impact to interstate compact administration.

Using Technology to Create and Inform Your Opioid Strategy

CSG Innovation Classroom presented by Esri Inc.

11 a.m. - Noon

The opioid crisis presents a complex problem that cannot be solved overnight. States, local governments, and nonprofits all generate and collect a wealth of data. But, how can states be more proactive and use this data more effectively? Modern technology, combined with mapping and data analytics, provide a better way to turn this data into information and insight, helps make better decisions when planning outreach and prevention programs, and raises public awareness and improves access to vital treatment services.

2:30-4 p.m. The U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics estimates that the number of licensed occupations has risen from 5 percent of the U. S. workforce in the 1950s to about a quarter of the workforce today. Navigating the various state licensing processes can pose a significant challenge for workers due to different rules, regulations, fee structures and continuing education requirements.
