FOREWORD

It is not claimed for this little volume that it is a complete "Who's Who" for the State of New Hampshire. The purpose of the compiler has been to bring together, in compact form, so as to be readily accessible for reference in newspaper offices, libraries and elsewhere, brief biographical sketches of one thousand representative New Hampshire men and women, native or resident. Undoubtedly a thousand more, equally worthy of mention, might have been included, had time and opportunity permitted, and it is to be hoped that another volume, embracing the same, may be hereafter brought out by some interested person.

As in "Who's Who" in America and New England, the design has been to include only living subjects, and this purpose has been departed from in only two or three exceptional cases. Nevertheless quite a number of those whose sketches are presented have died since they were arranged for and printed, the fact of death in each case so far as known being noted in the "Addenda," along with material facts, developing in regard to other subjects since their sketches were put in type, and the noting of certain errors which have been detected in some cases, while doubtless others have been overlooked. It is practically impossible to avoid mistakes, typographical and otherwise, in a work of this kind; but it is hoped that this volume is as free therefrom as is usually the case. The pages devoted to "Addenda and Errata" are inserted before the body of the work, and attention thereto should be duly given.

The abbreviations used are simple and readily understood, such as "b." for born, "d." for died, "s." for son, "dau." for daughter, "m." for married, and the customary abbreviations for names of states, orders, organizations, societies, etc. It has not appeared necessary to insert a table of abbreviations.

The printing of the volume having been commenced as soon as material came to hand and was properly prepared, the sketches are necessarily not arranged in alphabetical order. To have done that would have involved delay until the last sketch was procured before printing was commenced, and a consequent delay of many months more before the appearance of the work. No inconvenience results however, since an alphabetical index of subjects has been prepared, reference to which will enable one to find any particular sketch as readily as would have been the case with an alphabetical arrangement of sketches.

A distinguishing feature of this work, and one which adds immensely to its interest and value, in these days when illustration is a leading feature even of the daily newspapers of the country, is the presentation of portraits of subjects. More than half of the sketches are accompanied by portraits of the parties in question. This feature obtains in the latest edition of the Canadian "Who's Who," and vastly enhances its interest. That it will be appreciated by the general public is not to be doubted.

The compiler has had the preparation of this work in mind for many years. His only regret is that he has not been able to make it more complete. New Hampshire has always been prolific of men and women who have been active and prominent in the varied fields of human effort, at home and throughout the country, and is no less so at the present than in the past. The recorded achievements of her sons and daughters in former years, constitute an important part of the nation's history. The work of her children, native and resident, who are still on the stage of action, is equally worthy of record. Scattered in various volumes are biographical sketches of many of these. Tens of thousands of dollars have been expended for the presentation of the same in state and county genealogical and biographical publications of various descriptions the work upon which, literary and mechanical, has been done abroad, and the money for which has been taken outside the state. This volume is entirely a New Hampshire product. All the work, editorial and mechanical, has been done in the state, and the comparatively small amount of money expended therefor has remained in the state instead of going abroad for the benefit of outsiders.

If interest in the state of their birth or residence, and pride in the worthy record of its sons and daughters, is in some degree stimulated by this volume, and it proves what it is designed to be—a ready and convenient reference book for every day use, the compiler will feel that his labor of the last two years has not been entirely in vain, and will indulge the hope that some one else may be sufficiently interested, in the not distant future, to continue the enterprise, and prepare and publish another volume along the same line, for which ample field will be found.

Proctor, Edna Dean

Poet; b. Sept. 18, 1829, Henniker, N. H.; dau. John and Lucinda (Gould) Proctor; ed. in early years at home by her mother, later at Mt. Holyoke Seminary and at Concord, N. H., but in a larger way by life and the society of thinking men and women. Miss Proctor, New Hampshire's poet, born on Proctor Hill overlooking the fair Contoocook river ("Monadnock's child of snowdrifts born"), has made the hills and vales of her native state known round the world. A traveller in many lands, intimately associated since young womanhood with gifted and famous people, she is still a genuine daughter of New England. Her devotion to the scenes of childhood does not preclude her love for alien lands. In fact, her wide-reaching sympathies have made her peculiarly successful in interpreting the spirit of foreign scenes and peoples. Longfellow showed his appreciation of this by including so many of her productions in his "Poems of Places." Born with "eyes from out the East" she has a marvellous understanding of the Orient. Allah, Arabia, Islam live in her verse with its lyric impetuosity and impassioned fervor. Love of nature, of humanity and all that is highest and best in art are her distinguishing characteristics. Her song, "Blazon Columbia's Emblem, the Bounteous Golden Corn," should ere this have made the maize our national flower for never has fitting symbol been so gloriously celebrated. Her "Song of the Ancient People," relating to the Pueblo Indians, was so highly considered that the late Mrs. Mary Hemenway of Boston (Hemenway Southwestern Archeol. Expedition) was at much expense for its illustrations and it is now read and studied in the schools. Her "Russian Journey" was the fruit of two years of travel in Europe. Incidental references in her poems show her familiarity with most of the famous scenes and objects of the world. Her recent poem, "The Glory of Toil," has evoked much interest. In the last decade she has crossed the Andes, spending a season in South America; but she rarely fails to visit her native town each summer. Her inspiring personality as well as her genius have made her an uplifting influence wherever she has dwelt. For many years her home was in Brooklyn, N. Y., but she has spent much time in Washington and Atlantic City. Her books are: "Poems" (1866), "A Russian Journey" (1871), "Poems" (1890), "A Russian Journey" (revised 1890), "The Song of the Ancient People" (1892), "The Mountain Maid" (1901), "Songs of America" (1905), "The Glory of Toil," (1916). Res., Framingham, Mass.

Physician; b., Jan. 11, 1852, St. Johnsbury, Vt., s. Dr. Jesse P. and Elizabeth (Spear) Bancroft; ed. Concord schools, Phillips Andover Academy, 1870, Harvard University, A.B., 1874, Harvard Medical School, M.D., 1878; house officer, Boston City Hospital, eighteen months; assistant, N. H. State Hospital, nine months; general practice, Boston, 1879-82; superintendent, N. H. State Hospital, 1882-1917, succeeding his father, Dr. J. P.

Bancroft, who was superintendent for twenty-five years. This record of sixty years' service by father and son is probably unequalled in the country. In 1890 Dr. Bancroft carried out the movement, initiated by his father, for state care of the insane, which transferred patients from the county poor-farms and placed them under the care of the state where better treatment is possible. This necessitated the erection of eight new buildings at the State Hospital, 1900-11. In 1888 he established a training-school for nurses, one of the pioneer schools in hospitals for the insane; and many years ago he established shops for vocational and industrial training at the State Hospital. At his suggestion the state bought about 300 acres of farm land for the colony care of the insane. Contributor to Wood's "Reference Handbook of the Medical Sciences;" author of 14 monographs: "Inquiry into the Causes of Insanity with Especial Reference to Prevention and Treatment," 1884; "Automatic Muscular Movements Among Insane," 1891; "Physical Basis of Sin," 1894; "Two Cases of Homicidal, Amnesic, Transitory Frenzy," 1897; "Sub-Conscious Homicide and Suicide," 1898; "Legal and Medical Insanity," 1900; "Paresis," 1904; "Reconciliation of the Disparity between Hospital and Asylum Trained Nurses," 1904; "Women Nurses on Male Wards in Hospitals for the Insane," 1906; "Reception Hospitals and Psychopathic Wards in State Hospitals for the Insane," 1907; presidential address, "Hopeful and Discouraging Aspects of the Psychiatric Outlook," 1908; "Is there an Increase Among the Dementing Psychoses?" 1914; "Some Perils Confronting the State Care of the Insane," 1914; "Ought Limited Responsibility to be Recognized by the Courts?" 1916; often summoned before the courts as a medico-legal expert in the capacity of an alienist. ✓ Hale, William Gardner

University professor; b., Savannah, Ga., Feb. 9, 1849; s. William Bradford Hale of Savannah and Upton, Mass., and Elizabeth (Jewett) Hale of Peterborough, N. H. His boyhood was mostly spent in Peterborough, and it is to this town that he has always felt himself to belong. Graduated at Phillips Exeter Academy, 1866, Harvard College, 1870; appointed Tutor in Latin at Harvard, 1874, and served there, with a year of absence at the Universities of Leipzig and Goettingen, until 1880; professor of Latin at Cornell University, 1880; head of the Latin department at the University of Chicago since 1892; first chairman, 1895-9, and first director, 1895-6, of the American School of Classical Studies in Rome; received the degree of LL.D. from Union and Princeton universities in this country, and from St. Andrews and Aberdeen in Scotland; member of various philological associations in America and England, and of the Archaeological Institute of Berlin, Rome, and Athens; associate editor of several philological journals in America and England; member of the advisory board of the Loeb Classical Library. While Mr. Hale holds that the preëminent value of classical studies lies in their power to develop the literary sense, his own published work has been mainly on the linguistic side, and, in particular, in the field of syntax. Nor has it been confined to Greek and Latin. He has worked and published in the syntax of the Romance languages, especially French, Spanish and Italian, and the syntax of English and German. He is chairman of the Joint Committee on Grammatical Nomenclature commissioned by the National Education Ass'n, the Modern Language Ass'n, and the American Philological Ass'n, to prepare a reformed terminology for use in the schools of the United States. The results are being rapidly incorporated into our school grammars, especially of English. Mr. Hale, though brought up a Republican, is independent in politics. He worked for the first election of Grover Cleveland, opposed the Philippine War, and made the first campaign of publication (beginning in the N. Y. Times, Sept. 5, 1914) in favor of the participation of America in the war to save civilization, democracy, and herself, and to establish a world-court with power

Cressy, Will Martin

Actor and Playwright; b., Bradford, N. H., Oct. 29, 1863; s. Frank and Annette M. (Ring) Cressy; ed. public schools, Concord, N. H., high school; commenced active life as a traveling salesman, but soon relinquished this vocation for the stage, having been known as a versatile amateur actor in youth. His first professional engagement was with Frost & Fanshawe in 1889; subsequently for six years with Denman Thompson in his "Old Homestead" company, appearing in the well-remembered part of "Cy Prime," wherein he laid the foundation for the remarkable popularity he has since enjoyed. Not only is he a master in his line as an actor and entertainer, but he undoubtedly leads the world as an author of vaudeville sketches, or one act plays, having produced about one hundred and fifty, and is credited with having written about half of all the playlets now being presented in vaudeville. January 19, 1900, Mr. Cressy married Blanche Dayne of Troy, N. Y., who was also a member of the "Old Homestead" company, and together, under the widely familiar name of Cressy & Dayne, they have since been entertaining the amusement loving public of this and other lands, having visited England, Ireland, Scotland, Wales, Holland, Belgium, France, Japan, China, the Philippines, Hawaii, and other countries, and presented their plays in most of them. Much time has been devoted by Mr. Cressy in the last three years to giving illustrated free lectures to orphans and poor children in the theatres on Saturday mornings, free transportation being given them by the Rotary Club. Since the war broke out he has been deeply interested in all the "drives." He is the author of about twenty popular war poems which have been put into book form and sold, the proceeds being sent to some war fund. He has turned over $5,000 to the Tobacco fund alone; has earned thousands for the Y. M. C. A., Red Cross, and War Savings Stamp drives, and, during the various Liberty Loan drives was instrumental in selling hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of bonds. He is one of eight "Four Minute Men" at large, appointed by the President to speak on patriotic subjects, and made twenty-nine speeches during a two weeks stay in San Francisco. With his wife he enlisted in the summer of 1918, to go to France for five months for free service in the Theatrical Over Seas League for the entertainment of the American troops. Mr. Cressy has written three books that have had wide circulation, and is a constant correspondent of various newspapers and magazines; he is a Christian Scientist, a Republican and a member of the B. P. O. E. Permanent residence, Concord, N. H.; summer home, "Cressy Point," Sunapee Lake, Newbury, N. H.

Smith died at Tours, France, while serving in the U. S. Army, Aug. 21, 1918. A lieutenant's commission was announced almost simultaneously with his death. At the memorial service at the Smith Memorial Church in Hillsborough, named in honor of Gov. John B. Smith, Rev. E. D. Towle said: "In Archibald Smith flowered the finest traits of New England culture. . . . Modest, reverent, teachable, respecting the rights of others, but never self-assertive, he grew in wisdom and power until the end. . . . A beautiful courtesy lent distinction to his bearing. . . ."

His innate refinement kept him from the coarser things, but pure democracy, for which he died, was also something by which he had always lived. . . .

Concerning the part he played in this critical period of the world's life, a soldier-friend in Europe wrote: 'He is doing a wonderful work and doing it well.' . . . He had much to give and he gave all, for he had learned that service of humanity crowned with love to God is the sum total of life's meaning."

Upon his admission to the Massachusetts bar in 1910, he became associated with the firm of Hurlburt, Jones & Cabot, remained with this firm two years, then formed a partnership with Paul Hurlburt, son of Hon. Henry F. Hurlburt of Boston, and opened an office in Rochester, N. H., under the firm name of Jackson & Hurlburt. The success of the new firm was immediate and during the next five years there was little litigation of importance in Strafford county in which it was not engaged on one side or the other. On the entry of this country into the war, he enlisted in the 1st N. H. Reg. of Infantry, and was enrolled in Company C as a private; his two brothers, Harry B. Jackson and William M. Jackson having enlisted in the same organization. He went overseas in the 103rd Infantry. In the Second Battle of the Marne, in an attack on Hill 190, north of Chateau-

Thierry, he was wounded in the left wrist by a machine gun bullet and for his conduct in refusing to be evacuated and continuing in action and reseuing the wounded under heavy fire till overcome by loss of blood, was cited for bravery, recommended for the Distinguished Service Cross and promoted to Sergeant-Major. His regiment on this occasion lost 770 of 890 men engaged, and of 234 men in his company but ten remained unscathed after the attack; following the cessation of hostilities he was designated by the government for a course of instruction at the University of Can.
