EXPLANATION

The Department of Health and Human Services encourages and supports employees who wish to further their professional growth through continuing education in disciplines that are mutually advantageous.

Chantel Corriveau has worked for the Department for two years and is currently a Program Specialist IV in the Division of Family Assistance. The skills mastered in this program will benefit her office by increasing understanding of how federal and state governmental policy is formulated which will strengthen her ability to communicate and apply Department policies to her unit and to the clients she serves.

These courses, offered by New England College, the first entitled, Economic Analysis will discuss the analysis of economic phenomena from the perspectives of economic institutions and the decisions they make. Topics covered include the role of government and markets in advancing the public good, effects and limitations of government economic policies, and analysis of the effects of economic decisions on the institution and the public. The second course, Public Finance & Budgeting examines government intervention in the economy, the form of that intervention and the impact of governmental policy at local, state, and federal levels. The course will focus on the economic tools of analysis used in public finance and budgeting by the public sector. Public policies to address externalities, perverse incentives, public goods, social insurance, and the effects of taxes are among the topics examined in detail. Successful completion of the program will add to the overall strength of the Department to perform its mission to the residents of New Hampshire.

This course will not be taken on State time.
